WASHINGTON, D. C.

A report from Trebizond declares there is much talk among the Turks that the Armenians are conspiring against them. This is just what happened in the season preceding the bloody massacres of 1895. It is the wolf's contention that the lamb was muddying his water. The fact that the lamb was further down stream made no difference; the wolf had not dined.

Professor W. E. B. Du Bois, of Atlanta University, has begun an invesigation into the career of college bred negroes. He finds that there are between 1200 and 1500 negroes who have been graduated from college, and to each of them he intends to send a set of questions covering family life, scholastic life, occupation since graduation, literary efforts, official positions and financial success.

The goose step and a lot of physical suffering are in store for woman with the threatened coming into fashion again of the high heel unless she puts her foot down on the innovation, against which the shoe manufacturers are also said to revolt on the score of

An electrical device which drops a feed of oats into a horse's trough has been invented by a Youngstown, thio, man. Now if that same fellow, or even some other, can conjure up a way by which the oats can be dropped into the bin without cost the horse feeding business, will be about per-

The popular election of senators, according to a poll made by the New York Herald, is favored by 22 out of 36 governors who answered the Herald's request for an opinion on this subject. Of the opposing governors, a majority are in New England. In the West and South, the sentiment of the governors, and, according to their statement, of the people, is very strongly in favor of an amendment which will provide for the popular election of senators.

A writer in a French review has made a careful analysis of the wages of women in various countries. He says that in the United States a woman will earn about half as much as a man for doing the same work, and in England rather less. In Vienna the average earnings of a woman are from $1.20 to $1.60 a week. In Italy she gets about a third as much as a man. In Germany her earnings average $1.40 a week, while in France she is paid somewhat more than half a man's

The demonstration in South Africa of the enormous advantage modern arms give to the defence suggests, moreover, that there has occurred a change in the conditions of warfare itself and that British misfortunes there have been due to it rather than to any mere defect in the particular British military system. Hereafter, this little war with the Boers is likely to afford more material for the study of military men the world over than they will find in many of the greatest contests of history.

Stengel examined nine members of a football team immediately after playing, and found a systolic pulmonary marmur in three-probably due to dilatation of the right ventricle. This marmur disappeared after a rest. Muscular exercise, sufficiently rapid to cause breathlessness, puts a strain on the right ventricle, which in the robust and "trained" individual is soon recovered from, but in the middle-aged may bring about lasting disease. The question of "second wind" is a question of the right ventricle. Athletics continually indulged in tend to bring about some hypertrophy of the heart, says the London Hospital.

The United States is slowly discovering how many islands she has, Moua and Monito have just been run across, between San Domingo and Puerto Rico, by the mapmakers of the postoffice department, and it wrote to Washington to find out whose islands they were, any way. They turned out to be ours, coming under the head of "all other islands" ceded by Spain. They are not really of any particular value; but islands are a kind of ornament to a nation, like the beads on a lady's dress, and the more be islanded we are the prouder statistics we can flaunt to the international breeze. Both Mona and Monito are uninhabited and offer precious opportunities to any one desiring a retired country home with full riparian rights.

TO MY OWN.

BY EDWIN L. SABIN.

The squirrel lies bid in his hollow tree, All wrapped in his long, soft tail; The rabbit is snuggled as snug can be In his home 'neath the old fonce rail; The partridge is only a bunch of down Where thickest the arching brush— They in the forest and we in the town, Hush, my honey-boy, hush.

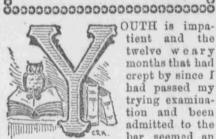

The field-mouse curls in a velvet ball The field-mouse curls in a velvet ball Far under the dead swamp grass;
In his hole by the frozen waterfall
The mink dreams oft of the bass;
And every chick of the ground and air
Is cuddled in haven deep—
So here, in the glow of the firelight fair, Sleep, my honey-boy, sleep.

The north wind romps with the whirling snow; Sly Jack Frost noses about; But wood and field are abed—for no, Not even the owl is out. And here, where the motherkin's breast is warm, And motherkin's arms are tight, Safe from the snow and the frost and storm, Good-night, honey-boy, good-night. —Saturday Evening Post.

8 A LAWYER'S STORY.

OUTH is impatient and the twelve weary months that had crept by since I had passed my not shield him. trying examination and been admitted to the fidently: bar seemed an eon of time. I hired a cozy little office in a building filled with scores of prominent law firms. After arranging my well-stocked library, I nailed up a new sign among the rest It soon became a sad trial of pa-

Among the many brilliant lights of the day my own name passed un-

Day after day, and month after had performed his task on the morn-month, I attended the courts or ing of Jane 23, just ten hours before was waiting for something to turn up. The small capital with which I hed started was dwindling away at an alarming pace and, as yet, I saw no prospective fee.

One pleasant afternoon Stanley Ferris, a young lawyer, who, like myself, was unwillingly idle, dropped in "What news, Jack?" he asked, carelessly. "Same as usual," I replied, despondently. "I've a notion to pack off in the wilderness for a few weeks.

Everybody is out of town, and there is little prospect of picking up a fee until they return.' My friend was about to reply, when there came a low tap at the "Come in," I said, carelessly, thinking it some chance acquaint-As the door opened my heart gave a great bound. I felt that my longooked-for client had arrived at last. At a single glance I took in all the details of my visitor's appearance. He was a middle-aged man, dressed in plain costume, and with a seeminggood-natured face. Most men would have set him down at once as a jelly, open-hearted individual; but I did not. My constant attendance at the courts had taught me much. There was something underlying his oily smile and obsequious manner that made me distrust him. "Is this Mr. Burns?" he asked. blandly.

I bowed in the affirmative and requested him to be seated. Stanley left the room at that moment, and the stranger continued: "My name is Brown, sir-Martin Brown. I have called upon you in a case of emergency." "In what way can I be of service?"

"My friend, who is in a dying condition, wishes you to draw up a will at once.

I seized my hat and hurriedly followed my visitor. In the elegantly furnished room of a hotel we found the man.

Owing to the heavily darkened room, I could distinguish nothing of his features. He lay with his face turned toward the wall, and in feeble tones dictated the terms of his will, as I drew it up. I accomplished my task to his satisfaction, and placed the document before him to sign. As he did so I noticed a deep red scar running across the back of his hand. The whole of the dying man's property—an immense one, by the way—was left to his dear friend, Martin Brown.

Two of the servants had been called in to witness the signature, and everything was performed according to law. As I left the house the smiling Mr. Brown handed me my fee. It was a beggarly amount—the more so from met Stanley, and in answer to his inquiries I related the circumstances.

"A beggarly miser," he exclaimed, indignantly. "I'd never believe it from his appearance.' It was nearly a week afterward that a young lady, dressed in deep mourning, called upon me. This time I had few words she stated her business, heard myopinion.

Her story was as follows: Three weeks before her uncle had left home in company with a man he called his friend. While in the city he had been taken suddenly ill and died. She had received no information of the fact until after her relative was buried.

Two years before her uncle had ' made a will making her, his only living relative, his sole heiress,

On her arrival in the city, however. she had been shown a will drawn up by her uncle on his death-bed, in which he left his entire property to his friend.

She could conceive of no reason for such a strange act, and, distrusting the friend, had sought out a lawyer. Luckily she was unacquainted with the names of our distinguished lawyers. My glaring gold sign had been the first to catch her eye, and so she called upon me.

"The case certainly looks suspicious," I remarked. "I think I will be able to make a fight in your behalf. Now, will you kindly furnish me with the names of these parties?"

"My nucle, sir, was Andrew Thur-ber. His friend calls himself Martin Brown.'

Involuntarily my pen dropped from my surprised fingers. It was the very will I had drawn up myself.

She turned pale as Irelated the circumstances and arose to feave. "I see I have made an awkward mistake in calling upon you," she said, sadly. "Wait one moment," I replied, quickly. "This Martin Brown is a total stranger to me. If he has been engaged in an act of villainy I shall

We entered into a close conversation, at the end of which I said, con-

"Leave the case to me. If I fail it shall be through no fault of mine." She accepted my offer with thanks and left me, thinking deeply.

During the interview I had learned that the deceased had no scar upon and waited for my clients to appear. his right hand. Now, certain of villainy in the affair, I set to work diligently to find it out.

Working cautiously, I found the man who had lain the body out for buyial. From him I learned that he passed the time in perusing cele- I was called upon to draw up the will. brated trial cases. Like Micawbar, I The will had been already offered for probate, so there was no time to be > Andrew Thurber's body was disinterred and the contents of the stomach analyzed. It was found to contain poison.

> By some means the sly wretch got wind of my movements and attempted to fly. At that moment the detectives seized him. Confronted by the terrible proofs, he made a full confession.

> Before his trial came off he ended his life by swallowing a quantity of the same deadly poison with which he had killed his victim.

Miss Thurber met with no further obstacles in regaining her rights. Something still more important happened to me from my connection with the case. I wooed and won the beautiful girl for my wife. As Stanley Ferris remarked afterward, I "gained fame and fortune with a rush.

His Scheme to Win a Girl.

"He was a good fellow," said he, 'but young and without much capital. The girl was a beauty and loved the manded that the boy show that he was very little creature, less than five feet capable of supporting a wife. This was in St. Louis about ten years ago, and the boy came to me with his troubles.

""Never mind, said I. 'I'll fix it up all right. By the way, how much will you take for your right leg?' "He looked at me as though I were crazy, but made no answer.

"L'Il give you $10,000 for it,' said 'Will you take it?' "'No, I won't,' said he. 'What do you take me for?' "Well, I knew the girl's father; he was a merchant, and I called to see. him. We finally drifted around to talking about this young fellow, and the old man flared a little, stating that he wanted some one who could support a wife to have his daughter.

"Support a wife, said I, in surprise; 'why, he certainly can do all that. Only a few days ago he refused

$10,000 for a piece of property.'
"'His own property?' asked the father. 'Certainly,' said I.
"'Who offered him the money?'

asked he. "'I did, and he refused it," I answered. 'He claimed it was worth more.' "Well, this made a hit, and no more questions were asked. The boy is doing well now, and has a good family. I haven't spoken to the father since."—Washington Times.

A Cure For Leprosy.

Two dozen specimens of the plant known in Venezuela as the tau tau have been sent from Washington to Hawaii for the purpose of making a test of its alleged power as a cure for leprosy. The plant will be tested at the leprosy hospitals there, where the fact that Mr. Brown was soon to 1073 lepers will afford every facility become wealthy. The man's wily for a thorough trial. Surgeon Carsmile, too, while his friend lay at the michel, of the Marine Hospital, has point of death sickened me, and I was also sent half a dozen bottles of the glad to hurry away. On my return I liquid preparation to Molakai, and this will be used for immediate tests while plants will be set out and cultiunlimited fresh matter for further use. Wonderful stories are current in Venezuela about the marvelous curative properties of tua tua when applied to leprosy, and the Government phya case in reality. She was not more sicians attach considerable importance than twenty, but her beautiful face to the evidence given them. It is bore the impress of deep grief. In a proposed also to test it in the island of Guan, that tiny speck of Pacific retaining the names until she had land that came to us with our other Spanish war acquisitions.

Irish Advice. "Never be critical upon the ladies," was the maxim of an old Irish peer. remarkable for his homage to the sex. "The only way that a true gentleman ever will attempt to look at the faults Then came the strangest part of the of a pretty woman is to shut his eyes." -Collier's Weekly.

A WOMAN OF STRONG MENTALITY HELD DOWN BY ECCENTRICITY.

An Ohio School Teacher Whose Mind Was Full of Brilliant Plans For Reforming the World-Sold Papers in Grotesque Garb in Cleveland.

rano de Bergerac, all twisted, may- to talk to her, and she was taken to hap, but still so pronounced that they the hospital against her violent promade their possessor almost a beggar | tosts. She was too small and weak instead of a queen. Ann Purkin, and too nearly starved to resist parseller of newspapers and writer of ticularly, even in words. At the hospoems and essays, died in a bed of pital she said she had not a friend in charity at St. Alexis Hospital, Cleveland, Ohio, a few weeks ago, aged here that she displayed the only thing fifty years. For a score of years she that seemed at all like womanly weakhad been the most picturesque figure | ness that is known of her. She said of Cleveland streets from the fact that she wanted to be buried in the old she wore the clothes that it pleased cemetery at Berlin Heights, a country her to wear. For most of those years village twenty-four miles from Cleveshe has been hungry, at least part of land, where the graves of her father the days, simply because she would and mother are. not use her wits as the world wished her to use them. She was a crank, but a brilliant one. Her love of letters was ideal, passionate and unrequited-she died for her opinions. Ann Purkin died with a trank full of poems and essays, half of which are so good that many writers of poetry and philosophy would have been glad to have written them. But she was not only a dress-reformer but a reformer of everything else almost. Years ago she addicted herself to spelling reform, and, as in all things, she went to the utmost extreme of it. She would not allow a line she had written to be printed otherwise than she had written it, both as to spelling and punctuation. She would rather starve. This kept her out of print and made rubbish of what would have been otherwise available matter, for in whatever she wrote there was more or less of the force and britliancy of the pen that has a right to write for print. She made one exception to this last summer when, during make the world hear her. She lecthe street-car strike, she used to take to the newspaper offices articles arging the cessation of violence in the fight against the company. With a tone in her voice which a Hindu mother might have had when she sent her girl child to the husband that had bought her, she would say, "You may change it if you want to," for she had gone over the ground often enough to she wrote as she wrote it.

DRESSED LIKE A BOY.

Ann Parkin's death was the only kind of a death her life could have sometimes working as a servant, she brought her. All winter, when she came back to the Cleveland streets was not ill, she was at her usual cor- and newspapers. The newsboys came ner on the busy square, selling the to recognizing her as a judge for their afternoon papers. Her voice was a differences and advisor for their shrill squeak as she cried out the troubles. One of her principles was names of the papers. To almost all that when one had made money the newspaper buyers she had ceased enough for his necessities he should to be a curio, they had known her so stop and give others a chance. When long. If those who did not know her she had sold a certain number of pastopped to gaze they saw that in her pers-and she sold them rapidly beface which kept them from laughing cause of the attention she attracted at her clothes. Her dress consisted she would stop and go home. boy, but the father objected, and de- of a boy's woolen shirt-for she was a -a coat over it that looked as though it had been made by the wearer with | iant plans for reforming the world and the disregard for it that she showed making it a heaven. A lifelong vegefor all the other things that seemed tarian of the strictest sort, not using to her unessentials, and a pair of short milk or eggs, the scheme that filled trousers-like garments that reached her mind during her last days was a to her knees. The breeches were magazine to be devoted to vegetarianmade of what looked like pieces of ism. The simplicity of her mind is horseblanket, and were shaped not shown in the fact that she was going unlike an ordinary pair of trousers to call it "The Fig Leat" and edit it cut off at the knees. Her stockings herself. In her delirium in the hoswere white and her shoes heavy ones pital she bemoaned her inability to such as working boys wear. Any- find a backer for the magazine. thing in the way of heal covering would do, and there was not in the the hospital, refused food and would whole of her costume any attempt at not even allow the hospital doctor to ornamentation or care.

Funny as her clothes were, one for- approached her bedside she would ask got them in looking into her face. The eyes were clear, small and expressive and there was in them, when away from her. Her attitude toward one talked with her, the look of the all humanity was hostile, save that soul that thinks it has never been un- she took a motherly interest in news-

ever being. in the breast of any woman. It is not was her love of all that pretended to kuown that she ever had a penny that the guise of literature. At the last, she did not earn. People who offered before she died, the hospital doctors her charity were rebuked with a got to telling her that they were reseverity they never forgot. If one porters in order to do the little that gave her a nickel for a paper and was possible in her aid. -Ohica 30 walked away she ran after him and Record. made him take his change. Once she was ill for a week or two and the city relief department sent her a ton of coal, piling it up in the one room where she lived, against her protests. It was in the dead of winter and she was forced to use about a quarter of the ton of coal. Then she carried what was left of it down the stairs and threw it out into the street, from where it was quickly taken by the less scrupulous women of the tenement. Then she went to the city hall, made her way into the Mayor's office and handed him a dollar, say-low it '10 to 1.' When I saw that I ing: "That is for what I used out of said to myself. I'll be hanged if I that load of coal you sent to me. I take any such risks as that!' So I threw the rest of it into the street, but I want to pay for all I used and I other plate, with 'Dr. Y,' and below want you to take the money so your it '3 to 5.' The odds were shorter, vated, with the purpose of providing thieving clerks can't say I didn't pay and I went to him."--Poarson's

REFUSED CHARITY FOOD.

A week before she died the other people in the Detroit street tenement some days. She never locked her of life before the deluge. she lived something of the feeling era staple-cotton. that made the slums of Paris worship Verlaine. The refusal of the world to bond of sympathy. They brought her | telegraph offices.

ANN PURKIN'S TRAGEDY, food, which she would not eat, and built her a fire, which she could not prevent. For years she has enten nothing but fruit and such other food as she could eat uncooked. That was part of her belief, that only uncooked vegetable food should be eaten. For years she ate nothing but fruit, raw oatmeal and raw rice soaked in water. She hated a doctor TITH the brain of a Mme. as she did correct spelling and skirts, de Stael, the determina- and was a hydropath. When the tion of a Charlotte Cor- other people in the tenement called a day and the luck of Cy- doctor she refused to even allow him the world or a relative, and it was

> WAS AN OHIO SCHOOLTEACHER. Berlin Heights is a small country community. There was once a wave of free-thinking sentiment there, and later the "bloomer" craze. Ann Purkin had been a schoolteacher there and was the star of the woman's club. She donned bloomers and wore them ever after. It is told that she was married at that time and that her husband told her she could not be his wife and wear bloomers, too. She chose the bloomers; and they separated amicably. This the dead newswoman denied, insisting that she had never been macried. She said her family name was Perkins, but that was not the way to spell it, and as there was but one of her, her name must be singular instead of plural.

All her young life in the country she had been writing poems and essays, but the editors always changed them and thereby harrowed her soul, So, twenty years ago, she went to Cleveland. She was determined to tured on dress reform and wrote more poetry. The poetry and some essays she had printed in a pamphlet and sold it in the streets in her bloomer costume. While the novelty lasted she did fairly well, but Cleveland was not then large enough so that it offered a permanent market, and as soon as she had made money enough out of one book she would get out another. know no newspaper would print what | Sales dropped off, though, and she went to Chicago thirteen years ago to work on a woman-suffrage publication. After remaining in Chicago six months, sometimes lecturing and

Her mind was always full of brill-

She refused to take any medicine at take her temperature. When any one 'Are you a doctor?" and if the answer was "Yes" she would insist that he go derstood and has grown hopeless of boys, and toward reporters showed a disposition that was a quaint mixture But there was not a prouder spirit of friendliness and adoration, so strong Risks Too Great.

A stable lad was taken ill on a visit to London, and a friend gave him the address of a doctor to whom to go. The lad came back shortly and reported progress. "I've got some medicine," said he

"but I'm blowed it I went to that doctor of yours!"

"Why?" asked his friend.
"Well," replied the boy, "I was just about to go in when I saw on the door plate his name, 'Dr. X.' and bewent two doors further, and saw an-Weekly.

Antedlluvian Soneyard. Phosphate rock is mined in South Carolina and converted into a flour. in which Ann Purkin lived remem- In the mines have been found many bered that she had not been seen for queer substances which give evidence door, and when they went into her antediluyian relics have attracted the room they found her alone in the attention of scientists of two worlds. cold, there being neither fuel nor fire There are monster tusks, teeth of all in the room, only her trunkful of sizes and hapes, fish bones in great manuscripts. There existed between quantity, all of which is ground up her and the poor people among whom and made to produce the great South-

Japan to-day has 2500 miles of give the poetess what she deserved railway, 11,720 miles of land tele-and them what they wanted made a graphs, 387 of submarine, and 1114 WHEN YOU WANT-Absolutely Pure Whiskey, Direct from the Distillery, call on THOMAS WELLS.

Glenndale, Flaryland. Handler of Pure Liquors, Beer, Wines

Home Repair Outfit...

Every article in this picture box. Price, including 1 year's STAR subscription to the SUBURBAN CITIZEN, $1.48.

A handy thing to have about the house. You can half-sole your own shoes in a few minutes. We have balf soles in all sizes for men, misses', ladies and boys. With this outfit you can half-sole men's shoes for 20c., women's and children's shoes for 10c. to 15c. Regniar retail price of outfit $1.48, which includes a year's subscription to the Suburban Citizen when you mention this adv.

GEO. N. HOLLAND, 1500 H St. N. E.

B. F. CHINN. Bhading & Hair-Dressing -SALOON.-

East Side Maryland Ave., Hyattsville, Maryland.

EDWARD L. GIES. Attorney - at - Law. Rooms 32 and 33 Warder Building, S. E. Cor. F and oth Streets N. W.

CONTRACTOR BUTCHESSESSESSES THOMAS W. SMITH, Lumber: Merchant,

SASH, DOORS, BLINDS, GLASS

WASHINGTON, D. C.

AND MILL WORK. WASHINGTON, - -Office, 1st St. and Indiana Ave. N. W. Mill, Foot 9th Street S. W. Wharf, 4th St. Eastern Branch,

SO SO BERLE BURGARA BU

Orlinated States of the Control of t JOHN APPICH, Beer, Whiskey AND Wine Merchant, 1309 11TH STREET, S. E. WASHINGTON, D. C. Oakmont and Silver Brook Whiskles -A SPECIALTY .--Extended dark and the control of the

C. A. M. WELLS. ROBERT M. WELLS. WELLS & WELLS,

Attorneys at Law, Fendall Building, opp. City Hall, Telephone 1819. Washington, D. C. Branch Offices: HYATTSVILLE, MD. UPPER MARLBORO, MD. Money Loaned on Caryland Real Estate.

Anyone sending a sketch and description may pulckly ascertain our opinion free whether an evention is probably patentable. Communications strictly confidential. Handbook on Patents ent free. Oldest agency for securing patents. Patents taken through furn & Co. receive pecial motice, without charge, in the omely illustrated weekly. Largest cir of any scientific journal. Terms, $3 a or months, $1. Sold by all newsdealers

MUNN & Co. 361 Broadway, New York

THE SUBURBAN CITItion is a permanent institution—a fixture at the NationaCapital. Thousands and thousands of people can testify to the good work it has accomplished during the past five years in the line of suburban improvement. It is the only pawspaper in the District of Columbia that maintains a punching bureau, whose duty it is to punch up the authorities and keep them awake to the needs of the suburbs. On that account it deserves and is receiving substantial encourwzement-THE SUBURBAN CITI-

PILE CURE

A Perfect Cure. Purely Vegetable Tablets. Speedy and permanent cure guaranteed or money refunded. The only internal remedy known to science. Indorsea by physicians and recommended by grateful sufferers who have been cured after having tried external remedies and surgical operations, and secured only temporary relief. We have thousands of testimonials from well known people in all parts of the country who have been cured. Price $1.00 per box postpaid. If you can not get it from your druggist write pirect to

The Dr. Donald Wallace Co., Peoria-II Medical advice and Booklets free-For Sale by Hubbard & Co., Benning, D. C.